Eradicating raccoons, lowering the city BPT

- Council approves bills that will decrease long-hated tax on businesses
- Lawmakers also passed bill on newly hated neighborhood mammals

City Council passed legislation Thursday overhauling business taxes in the city.

The bills will exempt small businesses from paying the privilege tax and eliminate many startup fees for new companies.

Sponsors Bill Green, Maria Quinones-Sanchez and Jim Kenney say that the laws will stimulate economic growth and level the playing field in Philadelphia compared to surrounding areas when it comes to drawing new businesses.

Also passed in Council was an amendment introduced by Darrell Clarke allowing city animal control authorities to trap and release wild nuisance raccoons.

Last week, Clarke said that he has been inundated with complaints from constituents about raccoon infestations and described one such animal chasing a young girl in North Philadelphia.

Brian Abernathy of the managing director's office said that, regardless of the legislation, animal control will not change their policy because the power to trap raccoons lies with the state and the city does not have the fiscal resources to abate them.

Furthermore, the humane aspect of the legislation is illegal, as according to state law, all wild animals caught must be killed.

"Possums and raccoons won't hurt you," he assured a dubious Council. "Racoons are lazy and harmless animals."

"People shouldn't have to deal with raccoons running up and down the street."

PSPCA: 33 dogs taken from homes

Local animal welfare workers removed 33 dogs from two homes Thursday after cops stumbled upon the unofficial, illegal kennel while investigating a narcotics claim.

Wendy Marano of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said the canines were removed around 1:30 p.m. from two homes on the 2000 block of East Victoria Street — 23 from one property and 10 from the second.

"Conditions were horrendous," Marano said. "A lot of the dogs were being kept in the basements — some in very small animal containers — and they couldn't get around. They were filthy, with urine and feces everywhere."

Police discovered the dogs when they were at the properties during a narcotics investigation. Most of them are Pomeranians and Chihuahuas.

What will happen

Marano said that some of the animals will be taken back to the PSPCA shelter and some will be surrendered for evidence. It is unclear what charges will be filed.

Hip-hop goes from musical to political

New party challenges status quo Enlists a former Army sergeant and Tea Party member for some guidance

PHOTOS: RICARD LARMA/METRO

▶ Pili X, left, has been campaigning as a write-in candidate for City Council with the help of Robert Allen Mansfield, right, a local Tea Party member.

Whether read literally or politically, the Hip-Hop Party for the People and the Tea Party seem, on the surface, to be unlikely allies.

But City Council at large write-in candidate Pili X, 26, and former gubernatorial hopeful Robert Allen Mansfield say the two groups have more in common than meets the eye.

"We both believe in holding the government accountable to the people they have to serve," said Mansfield, a retired Army sergeant, citing opposition to the citywide curfew, stop and frisk policy and lack of transparency.

Since meeting X at a Temple University panel discussion over the summer, Mansfield has been mentoring him on the ins and outs of municipal government and grassroots campaigning. "As he would say, he doesn't give me advice, he teaches me lessons," X said.

The Hip-Hop Party formed in February from members of the Poor Righteous Party of the Black Nation, who met at a former North Philly shoe shop turned community center to discuss local issues. "We came together at one meeting and decided, instead of complaining about politicians not doing their job, let's endorse our own member," X said.

They chose the party name because many members were raised on hip-hop, not just as a music genre, but as a cultural movement. "Hip-Hop, in its true essence, is about political and social change," X said. "We felt its language and culture spoke to us best."

While Mansfield is helping the party with its formation and fundraising, he says that X's ideological views are his own. "I don't want him to be a Robert Mansfield clone," he said. "It's not fair to live my political philosophy through Pili X."

Young movement growing

X is part of a growing trend of young people involved in city politics, which Mansfield hopes will continue.

"I think Isaiah Thomas was the catalyst to continue the movement of young people getting involved in politics in this city," Mansfield said. Thomas, 26, came in eighth in this year's Democratic City Council at large primary. The top five moved on to next week's general election.

"Whether you like their ideas or not, young people need to be brought into the system. There's a saying, it's better to have someone inside the tent pissing out than outside the tent pissing in," Mansfield said. "I'd rather invite them inside the tent because if you ignore them, they'll be outside the tent pissing in it." METRO/AW

Hip-Hop's issues

Pili X's campaign issues include:

- Increased investments in youth education, recreational activities and job training.
- Transforming neighborhoods by turning abandoned buildings and lots into marketplaces, community produce gardens, youth centers and permanent housing for the homeless by having communities take control of the properties and using funds from decreased police overtime.
- Ending the police-enforced citywide curfew and stop and frisk policies.
- Abolishing the School Reform Commission in favor of a community-elected school board.

More young adults living with parents

- Those having a hard time getting work stay at home
- Women more likely to get out on their own than men

It looks like more young adults are choosing to live at home with mom and dad these days.

According to data from the U.S. Census Bureau, the percentage of men age 25 to 34 living in their parents' home rose from 14 percent to 19 percent between 2005 and 2011. While the percentage of women living with their parents also increased during that period — from 8 percent in 2005 to 10 percent in 2011 — it's interesting to note that both pre- and post-recession percentages for the ladies were smaller than that of the guys.

The statistics come from the America's Families and Living Arrangements: 2011 report from the 2011 Current Population Survey.

"The increase in 25- to 34-year-olds living in their parents' home began before the recent recession, and has continued beyond it," said the author, Rose Kreider, a family demographer with the Census Bureau's Fertility and Family Statistics Branch.

The findings on 18- to 24-year-olds living at home also showed an increase during the past six years. According to the census data, 59 percent of men and 50 percent of women in this age group lived in their parents' home in 2011, up from 53 percent and 46 percent in 2005, respectively. The study counted college students living in a dormitory as living in their parents' home.

MAINSTREET.COM

Mama's boys?

Why the higher percentage of men living at home?

Lack of jobs likely has a lot to do with it. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, 9.4 percent of men age 16 and older were unemployed in September, versus 8.7 percent of women in that age group.

Euro debt threatens Greek PM

ATHENS. Greek Prime Minister George Papandreou defied demands on Thursday that he resign over his decision to hold a referendum on the nation's euro zone bailout deal, calling instead for his party to unite for a confidence vote in the government.

Greeks have fiercely opposed the spending cuts, tax raises and job losses which have been the price of aid from the IMF and the European Union to tackle the nation's huge debt and budget deficit. This has led to a wave of strikes and violence.

Analysts declared the referendum idea dead, a relief to euro zone leaders who agreed the bailout only last week. REUTERS

Occupy protesters clash with police

Police in riot gear clashed with protesters in Oakland on Thursday, firing tear gas to disperse demonstrators lingering in the streets after a day of mostly peaceful rallies against economic inequality and police brutality. The confrontation, which erupted after midnight, appeared aimed at preventing the protesters from expanding their foothold in the streets around a public plaza that has become a hub for demonstrations in the largely working-class city on the banks of San Francisco Bay. Tax study: Big firms don't pay

As politicians scramble to repair the US budget, report shows many corporations slip by with tax free

Thirty large and profitable U.S. corporations paid no income taxes in 2008 through 2010, said a study on Thursday that arrives as Congress faces rising demands for tax reform but seems unable or unwilling to act.

The statutory U.S. corporate income tax rate is 35 percent, one of the highest in the world; but over the 2008-2010 period, very few of the companies studied paid it, said the report.

Corporations will say rightly that the loopholes that let them slash their taxes were perfectly legal, the report said.

"But that does not mean that low-tax corporations bear no responsibility ... The laws were not enacted in a vacuum; they were adopted in response to relentless corporate lobbying, threats and campaign support," the report said.

Some of the 30 companies disputed the report's findings. A Pepco spokesman said it "pays all its required taxes."

As Congress and the Obama administration struggle with a sluggish economy and high deficits, corporations are pressing Capitol Hill for more tax breaks and a lower corporate rate. REUTERS

$1.2T

Taxes are on the agenda of the congressional "supercommittee" tasked with finding at least $1.2 trillion in additional budget savings by Nov. 23, but it is so far deadlocked across a familiar divide — Republicans refusing any tax increases, Democrats defending social programs.

Back from the dead

In 'A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas,' Neil Patrick Harris returns to the franchise that revived his dormant career in 2004 Not only is his character revived after being shot in the last film, this time he also brings along his real-life husband, David Burtka

Neil Patrick Harris has successfully come out of the post-child star wasteland to become one of the biggest stars working today, with a hit sitcom on CBS, gigs hosting every major awards show but the Oscars, and a large fan base cheering him on. And since it was his jaw-dropping cameo in 2004's "Harold & Kumar Go to White Castle" that helped relaunch his career, naturally he was game to come back for the franchise's third installment, "A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas" — even if he did get shot and killed at the end of the last film.

But you can't have NPH return from the dead for another "Harold & Kumar" film without upping the ante on his atrocious behavior. When asked if there's a line he wouldn't want to cross with his onscreen alter ego, Harris insists it's far too late for that kind of thinking. "That's such a tough question because I never thought that any of this would've been written," he says. "I wouldn't even have imagined that I would be smoking crack and trying to forcibly enter a dancer girl. I don't know where the line gets drawn here anymore."

▶ Neil Patrick Harris is always game for a little song and dance, as he is here, in "A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas," opening Friday.

DARREN MICHAELS

Of course, Harris' rising profile — and public coming out of the closet — have become factors since the original film, leaving a lot for the filmmakers to address. Harris was happy to poke fun at his newfound status — he's referred to as "America's Sweetheart" in the film — as long as he got a say in the jokes as usual. That held especially true since Harris' husband, David Burtka, was along for the ride this time.

"I was more cautious and protective of those scenes than any of the others, weirdly, just because I didn't want it to feel exploitative or like a sight gag and nothing more," says Harris. "I know David to be a well-trained Albee actor from New York, and I just didn't want it to seem like we were using him for some sight gag and then end it. And I didn't want to leave a bad taste in anyone's mouth about him on my watch, right?" In the end, Burtka is used to great comic effect — and we'll just leave it at that for now.

Neil and Kelly's Christmas that never was

In "A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas," the boys stumble upon Neil Patrick Harris rehearsing a Rockette-studded holiday spectacular, complete with show tunes and kick-lines. But that wasn't the original plan, as it turns out. "It was originally pitched to me as sort of a Bing Crosby Christmas TV special with Kelly Ripa, and the two of us were in our living room with our eight kids, wearing sweaters and singing 'Little Drummer Boy,' that kind of vibe," Harris explains. "And then Kelly, who loved the idea, was filming in Prince Edward Island that very week that we were filming and that I was available, and so she couldn't do it. So rather than find someone else to fill her shoes, they just turned it into another solo kind of performance."

Ben, meet Eddie

▶ Ben Stiller and Eddie Murphy are co-conspirators in "Tower Heist."

Stiller and Murphy team up for the first time in 'Tower Heist' 'I never look to be funnier because that just doesn't work,' says Stiller of acting opposite his co-star

It's hard to believe that two of the most prominent figures in modern comedy — Eddie Murphy, 50, and Ben Stiller, 45 — have never crossed paths before their most recent release, the comedy-caper film "Tower Heist." But not surprisingly, the two were anxious to work together for this movie, which was largely improvised.

"The comedy comes out of the characters so for me, I wasn't looking to see how funny I could be," Stiller says. "And then of course when you have Eddie Murphy in the movie, it takes a lot of the pressure off. I was really happy he was in the film. I never look to be funnier because that just doesn't work."

Stiller pauses in front of a packed room of journalists to mock himself with an imaginary headline. "Stiller: Not looking to be funnier. Maybe he should," he says.

Murphy conceived of the original idea for "Tower Heist" many years ago, though it's since been given a very timely twist. It centers around a Bernie Madoff-like businessman (played by Alan Alda) who swindles his employees out of their pensions. Angered by the fraud, some rogue vigilantes out of the group devise a plan to steal the money back. Given that the Occupy movement persists in many cities in the U.S. and elsewhere, Stiller noted the connection between the film and the headlines.

"I think there's a lot of frustration out there that's valid and that's probably what the Occupy Wall Street is an expression of," he says. "There's a lot of frustration in terms of where we're at in this economic situation and so I understand where it's coming from."

But don't get them wrong. "Tower Heist" is no grim exploration of dire economic times. With the ensemble cast that includes Casey Affleck, Matthew Broderick, Michael Pena and Gabourey Sidibe, there were many spontaneously hilarious moments in the film. Murphy remembers — or perhaps fabricates? — filming a scene in which his character flirts with Sidibe's.

"[Director Brett Ratner] whispered 'dim the lights!' And then, all of a sudden, Gabourey's top is off," he says. "And then it became a whole different type of scene. Ben was completely nude, just watching. I'm saying, 'what's happening?' [Producer Brian Grazer] is like, 'just go with it.' We go with it for about 40 minutes. I've never been in a scene like that. You'll have to get the DVD. We had to cut it out in order to get the PG-13 rating."

MURPHY ON HOSTING THIS YEAR'S OSCAR CEREMONY

Filming in New York City

Since this film centers around a prominent Central Park building, Stiller commented on the most noticeable contrasts between L.A. and New York.

"I think what you notice when you're in L.A. is that you don't have to deal with the elements. Jerry Seinfeld said to me recently, 'I like living in New York because it's harder.' He likes that. He likes that you have to deal with the winter and life is a little bit tougher. It's more in-your-face. I think that's something that shapes who New Yorkers are. There's a lot of people in one place and I think that's a really good thing, too — where people have to interact with each other on a daily basis"

Don't we all just want to know that Hollywood gets it? That despite the seven-figure salaries their top stars make, Hollywood despises what "the man" is doing in this crappy economy just as much as we do? "Tower Heist" is certainly trying to make that case, with a plot that centers around a group of disgruntled apartment building employees who lose their pensions in a scam by the building's arrogant owner — a very obvious nod to Bernie Madoff.

The shock and horror these employees feel gives way to the sort of revenge fantasy that we've been primed for ever since 2008. Building manager Josh Kovacs (Ben Stiller) assembles a motley crew of fellow victims, and his neighbor, a professional thief (Eddie Murphy) to attempt stealing the money back.

With an obvious connection to "Ocean's Eleven," "Heist" is a bit less clever on the logistical details of the caper than the former film and its two sequels. "Heist" pushes itself well beyond the point of believability with its ludicrous climax, but we did say specify that it's a fantasy, not high drama.

The performances are a mixed bag, if only for Ben Stiller's on-again, off-again Queens accent and Gabourey Sidibe's equally confused Jamaican accent. But it's nice to see Eddie Murphy work with something other than a fat suit to get the laughs.

The film does its best not to insult the intelligence of the audience, while still serving up a cathartic moment in which we get to watch the victims of corporate greed get repaid for their losses. In a world where that kind of justice seems impossible, sometimes, it's nice to be on the receiving end of some pandering. HEIDI PATALANO

Dive in to this 'Skin'

Pedro Almodovar's nuanced horror might be one of the best films to hit theaters this year ◐ Antonio Banderas is haunting as a new Dr. Frankenstein

Pedro Almodovar has a welcome home in the gothic horror genre. The director known for creating so many moving pieces of art has constructed a brilliant, disturbing film that doesn't sacrifice substantial portraits of believable characters in order to deliver a truly haunting story.

A renowned but disturbed plastic surgeon unleashes his internal Dr. Frankenstein after losing his wife to the aftereffects of a terrible burning in a car accident. In the first scene, we see that he has a patient locked up in his house, peacefully performing a yoga routine, creating sculptures out of her ripped-up clothes. That placid moment takes revelatory meaning by the film's halfway point.

And that's what makes this film so stunning. Almodovar plays with expectations in a way that's exhilarating and challenging. He leaks clues, little details, for the audience to put together. He doesn't pander with obvious explanations. It's a tremendous film.

Harold and Kumar get into the holidays

▶ Harold and Kumar seem to be visiting the land of misfit toys.

Say this much for "A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas": It certainly helps you forget the duo's second outing, "Harold & Kumar Escape from Guantanamo Bay," ever happened. This time around, the loveable honor roll stoners (John Cho and Kal Penn) are dealing with growing older, growing apart and taking on the holidays. The brisk comedy works best when it walks that fine line between skewering holiday classics and reveling in downright filth. It's a careful balance, and the filmmakers don't always maintain it. (A tribute to a key scene in "Christmas Story" involving a frozen pole and one of Harold's more sensitive areas is particularly line-crossing.) But all in all, it's good, filthy fun.

Of course, what everyone's really here for is some naughty Neil Patrick Harris action, as his cameo in the first film helped make it a cult classic and relaunch his dormant career. And he doesn't disappoint here, poking fun at his public image and even getting husband David Burtka in on the fun. His slice of screen time — including a festive, kick-line-filled song and dance followed by NPH sexually assaulting a Rockette — is the highlight of the film.

The new Bond

5 things to know about 007's 'Skyfall'

▶ Daniel Craig

"Bond 23" — now officially called "Skyfall" — is a go. "We start shooting today," announced Daniel Craig from a press conference in London on Thursday. Among the facts confirmed:

1: The title! Although previous titles have referenced creator Ian Fleming's works, "Skyfall" is apparently brand new, with no connection.

2: Villain Javier Bardem is a softie in real life. "One of the most beautiful memories I had as a kid was going to see all these movies," said Bardem at the press conference Thursday.

3: Naomie Harris, star of "28 Days Later" and "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest," will star as field agent Eve.

4: Sam Mendes, director of "American Beauty," isn't known for his action movies. But he said he has a good second-unit director — Alexander Witt, who directed set pieces for "Casino Royale" and "X-Men: First Class."

5: And perhaps most important: Will Craig and Bardem take off their shirts? "Damn right," said producer Barbara Broccoli. MWN

Olsen and Hawkes on the cult of 'Martha Marcy May Marlene'

You'd think that celebrated actor John Hawkes, 52, and newcomer Elizabeth Olsen, 22, might lack a rapport after having shot a number of fiercely awkward scenes in their new film, "Martha Marcy May Marlene." The former plays the charismatic leader of a small cult in the Catskills and the latter plays one of his newest followers — for whom he has both a paternal and somewhat romantic affection. Fortunately, the two actors are plenty comfortable talking about all of their strange and disturbing on-screen moments together.

"There's a lot of room for you to fill in details. It's a satisfying thing having it that way rather than having it all sledge hammered into your head that this is how to think and this is exactly how it went."

JOHN HAWKES ON HOW THE CULT IS PORTRAYED IN "MARTHA"

The cult initiation scene is especially tough to watch. What's the most difficult part of filming something like that?

Hawkes: One of the creepiest things about that was that there were rats in that little spot, and I really dislike rats. We were all hoping — [to Olsen] perhaps not you, because you were on the ground — but that one would just kind of run through in the background. And that's the thing. Another actress could've been really beyond difficult. Maybe even unshootable. But Lizzie was so — I think you were just so green you had no clue.

Olsen: I had no idea. I was like, "You want me to do what? OK."

Hawkes: She was really game and courageous.

One of the most fascinating things about the movie is the cult itself. Did you work out a backstory for the group?

Hawkes: I think that [director Sean Durkin's] approach wasn't to be obtuse for that sake — but more that it's the most interesting way to tell the story. That's part of the haunting aspect of it, that it's not all answered for you and there's a lot of room for you to fill in details. It's a satisfying thing having it that way rather than having it all sledge-hammered into your head.

Q&A

The real 'it' girl

Liz, so much press for this film has discussed you as being the new "it" girl. Since you've been exposed to fame from a young age with your sisters [Mary Kate and Ashley Olsen], do you think you've handled this attention differently than an outsider would have?
Maybe. But it's not just my family. It's also growing up in L.A. and having lots of my friends, their parents being professionals in this business as well, in all different aspects. I never thought of acting as the red carpets and the glitter or whatever. I always thought of it as work.

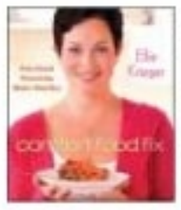
Is healthy comfort food an oxymoron?

Not if you ask Ellie Krieger The master of good-for you-and-delicious meals makes guilt-free wings

Krieger is the samurai of healthy cooking that tastes good. Why? She won't sacrifice flavor for anything. Low-fat cheeses, be damned. She won't go there. And in her latest book "Comfort Food Fix: Feel-Good Favorites Made Healthy," Krieger conquers what most chefs would deem impossible. We spoke to the Food Network star about her making of miracles.



What are the hallmarks of comfort food?

It's all so cheesy or fried. Research shows that the No. 1 comfort food is chips. I think that's because people associate chips with parties and relaxing. One of the things I say in the forward is that comfort food is different things for different people, and so it depends on your memories and personal experiences.

How can you make comfort food healthy?

There's this whole section on noshes and nibbles. It's sort of like bar food. A lot of those foods are fried chips, fried wings, nachos, cheesy fried stuff. What I did there was really use my oven — making all kinds of chips in the oven, getting that crisp and flavorful punch — not relying on salt only, but using other kinds of spices and then with things like the wings, finding ways to keep the essence of it but lose the fat. That's why I render the fat off the chicken wings by boiling them first. That eliminates most of the fat from the skin.

▶ What Krieger loses with the lack of salt she makes up with finger-licking spices.

One common ingredient in comfort food is a cheesy sauce. How do you make that healthy?

You thicken a low fat milk with flour and then you add the cheese. I'm still using the real cheese and that's giving you the flavor. Rather than using cream, I'm just thickening milk. It doesn't compromise the texture and you still get the cheesy flavor.

Comfort foods are often slow-cooking concoctions. Are these doable?

These are totally pared-down and doable for the average cook. You don't need to be a chef to do these recipes by any stretch, but they're a little bit more like slow food. There are definitely some recipes that you might make for the holidays or that you might make for the weekend or that you might make for the week and freeze it.

Weekend recipe

Skillet mac and cheese

Serving mac and cheese in the skillet it's baked in amps up the homey comfort factor. The secret ingredient in this bread crumb-topped beauty is the finely chopped cauliflower that blends in subtly with the pasta. Using three different cheeses guarantees maximum flavor and meltability.

Ingredients:

- 2 cups 1-inch-wide cauliflower florets
- 1¼ cups Light-and-Crisp Whole-Wheat Bread Crumbs
- 3 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 3 cups cold low-fat (1%) milk
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1¼ cups shredded extra-sharp cheddar cheese (5 ounces)
- ¼ cup shredded Gruyere cheese (1 ounce)
- 2 teaspoons mustard powder
- ¾ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 6 ounces (1 1/2 cups) whole-grain elbow macaroni, cooked for 3 minutes less than the package directions (about 3 cups cooked)
- Nonstick cooking spray

Preparation:

1. Preheat the oven to 375°F.
2. Place the cauliflower into a steamer basket fitted over the pot, cover, and steam until just tender, about 5 minutes. Finely chop the steamed cauliflower.
3. In a small bowl, combine the bread crumbs, Parmesan and oil.
4. In a large saucepan, whisk together the milk and flour until the flour is dissolved. Whisking constantly, bring the mixture to a gentle boil over medium heat. Reduce the heat to medium low and simmer until the mixture thickens slightly, two to three minutes. Stir in the cheddar, Gruyere, mustard powder, paprika, salt, black pepper, and cayenne pepper. Whisk until the cheeses are melted and the mixture is smooth, one to two minutes. Add the chopped cauliflower and macaroni and stir until well coated.
5. Spray an ovenproof 10-inch high-sided skillet with cooking spray. Pour the mixture into the prepared skillet. Sprinkle with the bread crumb mixture, place on a baking sheet, and bake until the top is browned and the cheese is bubbly, 35 to 40 minutes.

‘Motownphilly’ back again

Boyz II Men return with a commemorative collection that features new tunes and re-recorded classics

In the digital age, where most listeners purchase single songs online for $1.29, does it really make sense to re-record your hits and package them with new songs? If you're Boyz II Men, it's not just about trying to entice people to buy your entire album at the local retail outlet, says singer Nathan Morris.

“When you're signed to a major record label, they sign you for a certain time and after it's passed, you're allowed to re-record songs,” he explains. “One of the reasons we thought it would be cool is that now we can re-record our songs and we can physically own the masters ourselves and we can license them to whoever we want to license them to versus Universal having all the power and control over our songs.”

Quoted

“We did those songs 20 years ago, and performing them now is different because now we have a whole different outlook on the songs.”

BOYZ II MEN SINGER NATHAN MORRIS

Both the new songs and the newer versions of the hits on the group's recently released “Twenty” are in keeping with the spirit of the originals that made them one of the most successful R&B groups ever. And yes, their new album is called “Twenty” because they've been together for two decades. Morris says this milestone anniversary was very much present in their minds when they went into the studio.

“It was cool. The fact that we were able to perform all of these songs with the original producers is a good thing,” he says. “It wasn't tedious at all. We perform these songs a lot on stage, and the fact is that we did those songs 20 years ago, and performing them now is different because now we have a whole different outlook on the songs.”

Q&A

A few quick ?uestions

You and the Roots and ?uestlove go way back.
Yeah, we actually shared the same homeroom in high school. We come from the same everything, he graduated with me.

He's even in the “Motownphilly” video, right?
Yeah he's in there playing drums.

I almost didn't recognize him because he doesn't have the trademark afro.
Yeah, he has the dreads. That was the early years.

Love on the rocks for rock couples

Musical marriages are not easy, as the singers we spoke to will tell you
And that goes double if you play in the same band as your spouse

While Kim Kardashian continues to run unchallenged for most newsworthy divorce in the universe, elsewhere in the entertainment industry there have been a few other quiet uncouplings that are no less newsworthy.

In mid-October, Sonic Youth figureheads Thurston Moore and Kim Gordon announced that they're separating after 27 years of marriage. Earlier this week, actress and She & Him singer Zooey Deschanel and Death Cab for Cutie singer Ben Gibbard announced their separation after two years of marriage.

For some reason, musical romances seem to be more legitimate than Hollywood marriages. Perhaps because the résumé bullet points of a songwriter include exploring the essence of love and giving hope to the masses. And when those people find love in their own personal lives, it makes everyone happy for them.

Deschanel, left, and Gibbard announced they are separating.

But musical couplings seem rife with hazards and historical examples of rock relationships being, well, rocky. Within the pop pairings there are more Bobby Brown and Whitney Houston pairings than there are successful ones like Arcade Fire's Win Butler and Regine Chassagne.

If both partners are leaders in their bands, they obviously have strong personalities. And if they're in the same band, that's even more challenging.

Glen Hansard and Marketa Irglova made a lovely musical couple in the movie "Once," and in their band, the Swell Season, the pair certainly made a convincing case for the existence of true love. But when we spoke with Hansard a few years back, he said the romance route was not productive for their art.

"We kind of tried it out, and decided it wasn't for us," he said.

Blake Hazard and John Dragonetti continue to shine as a beacon of wedded hope. In their band, the Submarines, they even lay out their relationship difficulties lyrically.

Hazard, left and Dragonetti keep it together.

"Without getting into it too much, it's been up and down," said Dragonetti when we spoke to him this past spring. "We're trying to figure it out. It gives us stuff to write about."

Hazard chimed in, "I don't think there's quite a way for writing about things without pulling any punches."

Bethany Cosentino of the band Best Coast, who dates Wavves singer and guitarist Nathan Williams, told Metro last year that the most difficult part of dating another musician in the spotlight is the public's perception.

"It's not like we were like, 'Oh hey, we both play music, let's start dating,'" she said. "We've known each other for five or six years."

Have a novel November

How's this for a novel concept? Write a novel in a month — this month. That's exactly what a quarter of a million people will do as part of National Novel Writing Month.

NaNoWriMo began with 21 writers in the summer of 1999, and each year, the participants grew exponentially, from 5,000 in 2001 to the 250,000 reportedly registered on www.nanowrimo.org for this year. Headquartered in San Francisco, NaNoWriMo is all about "quantity not quality." In other words, they want you to write without thinking. At the end, you'll have 170 pages of material you can edit.

It's also a chance for those who have always wanted to write but constantly put it off, to be motivated by the looming Nov. 30 midnight deadline.

Since the first month in 1999, more than 140,000 novels have been written, with more than 100 of those getting published. Sara Gruen wrote the No. 1 New York Times best-seller "Water For Elephants" as a NaNoWriMo novel. So without the NaNoWriMo site, the world might have never seen Robert Pattinson paired with Reese Witherspoon in the major motion picture adaptation.

Though donations are encouraged, there is no fee to participate in the project, and in December, visitors to the site can read the work of writers who met the minimum 50,000 word count.

Sam writes a novel

SAMANTHA SWEENEY
TWITTER: @SAMWRITESANOVEL

Sam's goals

WEEK 1:
- Write at least 1,700 words or more a day to get off on the right, inspired foot.
- Concentrate on writing without thinking and get out of the habit of going over every sentence.
- Wake up early and write, as opposed to waiting until nighttime.
- Develop definite characters with solid backgrounds.

FOLLOW SAM'S PROGRESS ON TWITTER @SAMWRITESANOVEL

WEEK 2:
- By the start of the week, I should have figured out my conflict and have begun to lead the characters to it.
- NaNoWriMo suggests 22,000 words by the weekend, but I'll aim for 25,000.
- Start to think about the future of the story: Where will these characters go?

WEEK 3:
- A conflict should be developed and actions should be leading up to this point.
- Try to stay positive: It's half over, and my sleep pattern will be normal again soon!

WEEK 4:
- The next question on my mind will be: How will this end?
- My (hopefully tiny) bit of procrastination will probably show through at the end of this week, so I'll aim for 2,000- to 5,000-word days.
- Hit 50,000 words and submit my novel. Get book deal, critical acclaim and worldwide fame ensues!

Raising 'Hell'

It took grit and a lot of (fake) blood to make AMC's new Western 'Hell on Wheels' so authentic Anson Mount on bringing America's violent past to TV

The Western is the most iconic, uniquely American genre to be churned out of Hollywood. With the debut of "Hell on Wheels," it might also be the dirtiest.

"There's a lot of sunburn and dirt and mud. There's a lot of animals," leading man Anson Mount says of the Alberta set of the new AMC drama. "And there's a lot of fake blood."

Oh, is there ever blood.

Recounting the construction of the Transcontinental Railroad in post-Civil War America, the "Hell on Wheels" tale is one of technological advances, greed, and the plight of Native Americans, newly emancipated African-Americans (including a character played by rapper-actor Common) and immigrants. It's told through the story of Mount's character, Cullen Bohannon, a Confederate soldier who heads west seeking revenge for the death of his wife. Far from the romantic notion of the classic Western, this series is a vivid, brutal retelling of historical fact that doesn't shy away from the ugly actions our nation took in the name of progress.

"The first time I saw the pilot, I turned to the producers and told them, 'I think we have just made the bloodiest thing ever shot on television,'" Mount says. He believes the series' attention to the authenticity of this tumultuous period — including its violence and language that is far from politically correct today — is something audiences will appreciate.

"I think people are more interested in reality than just a shiny object," he says. "I think they are always going to respond to something that is truthful. The American audience is, by and large, a lot smarter than the Hollywood people give them credit for."

In other words, don't expect the good guy to ride up on a white steed with silver spurs and a million-dollar smile in this Western.

The history

"Hell on Wheels" refers to the mobile city that would spring up as the construction of the railroad progressed westward. The first Hell on Wheels town — a city of saloons, gambling houses and brothels — sprung up in Omaha, Neb. in 1865.

Anson Mount stars as Cullen Bohannon in "Hell on Wheels," premiering Sunday at 10 p.m. on AMC.

Coloring 'Hell on Wheels'

Despite all that blood, "Hell on Wheels" is actually beautiful to watch, like an old, sepia-toned photograph come to life.

"The art direction wanted a lot of brown and gunmetal gray," Mount explains of the series' visual quality. "And outside of [the construction of the railroad], they wanted everything to be lush and green. They wanted a concept like an industrial machine firing up the earth, destroying the country."

This weekend, it's Found vs. Found

The Found Footage Festival and Found Magazine are teaming up for a salvaged treasures showdown 'It's as close to bloodsport as NPR listeners are going to get'

Earlier this year, Nick Prueher was faced with an unlikely problem. His Found Footage Festival was booked to go on at the same time, in the same building, as the Found Magazine tour. Although both rockstars of the genre, the events draw a niche group of people who live for finding dusty suitcases full of other people's embarrassing love letters and shaky home videos. Rather than compete, he approached Found mag's Davy Rothbart, and they combined the events.

"It was like meeting a long-lost brother that you didn't know you had," says Prueher of Rothbart. "I was like, 'Someone's into the same weird hobbies? Did you ever get that dust in your lungs from handling found things? Yeah? I've had that, too!' But of course if you feel like you're brothers with someone, the natural instinct is to want to fight them."

Which brings us to this weekend's "Found Vs. Found" show at Johnny Brenda's. This time out, Prueher and fellow Found Footage host Joe Pickett will pit their best clips of videos rescued from thrift stores and Dumpsters against the outrageous to-do lists and heartbreaking birthday cards that Rothbart and his brother Peter assemble into Found Magazine.

"It's like a showdown featuring four of the biggest p—s you'll ever meet," explains Prueher of the show. "It's as close to bloodsport as NPR listeners are going to get."

Who should we bet on?

The Found Footage Festival has some real gems, from '80s workout videos to the wildly popular "Winnebago Man" clip, which inspired a documentary on the very fiery RV salesman. That said, Prueher knows he has serious competition: "They definitely have some good stuff, plus Peter plays the guitar and is good looking. All we've got are our videos we found in a Dumpster."

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

The feed ...

On Fridays, Dorothy will post the best tweets she received during the week. You can always let her know what you think — good or bad — at @dorothyatmetro.

This week, everyone weighs in on — what else? — the 72-day marriage of Kim Kardashian and Kris Humphries. And @Henry_Be and @dhm comment on the rumor that famed director Gus Van Sant and Taylor Lautner (really?!) are working on an indie film project together.

▶ @glory_anne Ouch! I was rooting for them in a weird, reality TV fan sort of way but alas. They're no Khloe/Lamar!

▶ @Thidowitz I wasn't paying attention and missed the entire marriage

▶ @travelgirl1971 Ironically with all of KK's boo hooing she'll probably have KH sign something that he can't make money off the divorce.

▶ @v0xtheriot poor kris can't afford anything due to the lockout. He should make that excuse

▶ @happywithmyname Who cares? At the end of the day she'll still be rich & famous for doing some guy.

▶ @Henry_Be Is it a shot-for-shot remake of Twilight?

▶ @dhm Maybe Gus Van Sant is remaking Psycho again, only with s—ty actors.

Kardashian

BABY, BABY, EWW

Poor Mariah Yeater. First, the 20-year-old (allegedly!) had sex with Justin Bieber, then she (allegedly!) got pregnant by him, and now she's facing the wrath of millions of hormonal girls (not allegedly!) on the Internet. Several Facebook hatepages have sprung up bashing Yeater and Twitter is absolutely inflamed with misspelled hate-tweets. Here's a sampling:

▶ @BieberSwagGiirl MARIAH YEATER SHE'S SO UGLY ! JUSTIN WOULD NEVER F— WITH THAT GIRL!

▶ @BieberImYours you say mariah yeater... I say a psycho hoe!

Yikes. If Yeater is just filing this paternity suit for attention, she's getting it. But I find this whole claim totally unbelievable as, really, have Bieber's testes even descended yet? And if Yeater, 20, did have sex with Bieber, 17, wouldn't she just be admitting to pedophilia? But then again, I thought the marriage between Kim Kardashian and Kris Humphries would last to at least six months, so I've been wrong before.

▶ @BieberSuperArmy Dear Mariah Yeater, If karma doesn't hit you, I will.

Talking points

Biel and Timberlake back together?

While Jessica Biel has been spotted out and about with ex-boyfriend Justin Timberlake, spurring plenty of reconciliation rumors, that doesn't mean the actress is ready to spill the beans. "A girl doesn't kiss and tell," she says to Elle magazine when pressed on the topic. But with Timberlake now establishing himself on screen, she's more than happy to talk about the propensity to date fellow actors. "I think those are the people you meet and so it just kind of happens," says Biel. "Let me tell you: It never happens on purpose."

Gaga and Kinney: It's on!

Lady Gaga reportedly had so much fun making out with "Vampire Diaries" star Taylor Kinney during the shoot for her "You and I" video that she's reportedly decided to keep it going off-camera as well, according to Us Weekly. "They're hooking up and getting to know each other," a source says. But while they are enjoying each other's company, it's not serious.

▶ Sambora and Richards back in 2007.

Richards reignites old flame

Denise Richards has reportedly rekindled her romance with Richie Sambora, according to Us Weekly. "They've always stayed friends, through everything they've gone through," a source says. "He's had a rough patch, she's had her own stuff, but they're both in a great place right now." The pair dated in 2006 after she split from Charlie Sheen and he divorced Heather Locklear, but the relationship only lasted about a year. Now the pair are said to be "doing great and happy."

Now we know where Moore likes it

While Ashton Kutcher has come under fire due to allegations of infidelity, new reports suggest Demi Moore might be in the same boat. According to In Touch, Moore got more than a little friendly with a young pal of Kutcher, actor Ben Hollingsworth, one night after picking him up from a party. "They wound up having sex in the back of the car," a source claims. "It just kept going from there." But not too far, as Hollingsworth called off the affair soon after. "He was getting to be better friends with Ashton and he felt bad," the source explains.

Sex in a car? Why do we need to know these graphic details? Between Kutcher having sex in a hot tub and Moore doing the deed in the back seat of a car, it's as though these two have something against beds.

A few recent things we're thankful for

As Thanksgiving draws closer, we pause in our stars-spotting tracks and give thanks to the universe for granting us these highlights from the past few months.

1: First up? Chris Evans in next summer's "The Avengers." The hunky actor sported a leather jacket and a motorcycle while filming in Central Park in September. More pictures like this, please.

2: Are we thankful Ed Westwick is trying to bring back acid-wash? Who cares? All he needs to do is look pretty in it. The "Gossip Girl" star was out at the T-Mobile Samsung Galaxy S II and HTC Amaze 4G launch at Espace in New York City last month.

3: Ryan Reynolds in a three-piece suit and a slight beard? Yes, please! Here he is at the German premiere of "The Green Lantern" in July.

4: Whether or not Taylor Lautner can act doesn't matter when he has a jaw-line like that. Meow. Here he is at the Spanish premiere of "Abduction" in September.

5: Carey Mulligan charms on the red carpet at the 22nd annual Palm Springs International Film Festival Awards Gala in California.

6: Although annoying to some, we're happy that at least Lea Michele is bringing back actors who can sing and dance to the forefront of popular culture.

7: Eva Mendes attended the Salvatore Ferragamo's Women's Resort 2012 Collection in New York City in June, looking nothing less than perfection in a color-blocked dress, along with matching clutch and pumps.

8: And, finally, we're thankful that Halle Berry, 45, only gets better with age. She attended the FiFi Awards in New York City in May and showed off her to-die-for figure in a black midriff revealing dress. We bow down to you.

▶ The house always wins.

The truth about risky business

"MF GLOBAL: HOW NOT TO MANAGE RISK", ABCNEWS.COM, NOV. 1. It's said there's no reward in life without risk. Incumbent in this axiom is the idea that, in order to reap gains, it is necessary to make certain (hopefully educated) gambles. A risk taker must be prepared to lose in the event that his risk goes awry.

A problem arises when, as in the upper eschelons of the financial industry, one takes a risk with someone else's collateral. Take the case of recently bankrupted MF Global. The firm bet big on risky European debt. Had the risk paid off, execs like CEO Jon Corzine, the former Democrat governor of New Jersey, stood to enrich themselves generously. They lost their bet, but the risks were borne by their investors — including pension funds of hard-working Americans. Corzine may even take millions more in the form of golden parachute bonus money.

Occupy protesters risk everything — freedom, comfort, financial security — to raise awareness of a system in which a rich elite risk nothing of their own in mad gambles to win everything. Win or lose, the 1 percent wins. And we lose.

What's a fumble worth to you?

The Chargers had the game won Monday night. If Philip Rivers doesn't inexplicably drop a snap, they win. Period. Instead, they lost in overtime.

So, what would the line for Sunday's game against the Packers be if San Diego had won in Week 8?

At the Las Vegas Hilton, the Packers were available at -3.5 on Tuesday. Now, they're -6. That's because people saw the Chargers choke and wanted to bet against them. That's the kind of reactionary, short-sighted strategy that's best avoided.

If the Chargers had won that game — as they essentially did — the line probably would have held at Packers -3.5, or maybe even -3. But thanks to a fluke fumble, we can grab three extra points on the Chargers. It's like stealing points. ADAM LEVITAN

Eli Manning right there with Pats QB

People laughed when Peyton's little bro called himself 'elite' But it's looking like he was right QB battle highlights Super Bowl XLII rematch

The Patriots and Giants will meet on Sunday for the first meaningful time since ... well, you know.

But don't expect to see many of the faces from Super Bowl XLII this week — those days are long gone. Two main ones, however, will remain: Tom Brady and Eli Manning.

Manning made headlines prior to the start of the regular season, when he said he was in the same "elite" class as Brady.

Eli Manning? In Tom Brady's class? Ha!

But maybe he was on to something. The Giants are sitting at 5-2 — the same record as the Patriots — and their quarterback is a huge reason why.

Taking a look at the numbers, Manning appears to very much so be in Brady's class this season.

Manning ranks third in the NFL in passer rating (102.1), just behind Brady's second-best 104.4.

Brady sits fourth in the league in yards (2,361) and completion percentage (67.6). Manning is fifth in both categories (2,127, 64.7).

And the Giants QB has thrown three fewer interceptions than the Patriots' signal-caller.

"I think any player in the league, they always feel confident in their ability," Manning said. "Whether you just played a great game or you just played a poor game — you feel that next week you're going to go out and play great and make every throw and make every play and put your team in situations to win games. I think that's the attitude that most athletes have."

In the grand scheme of things, Manning will never be Brady. But he's proving that he's capable of hanging around with the big boys.

And against a secondary like the Patriots, just hanging around may be enough to get the job done.

The cold, hard football facts

A look at this weekend's NFL action through the eyes of the football stat experts at coldhardfootballfacts.com.

Philadelphia's run at history

The Eagles' ground game is on pace to be the best ever. LeSean McCoy, Michael Vick and Co., average an incredible 5.78 yards per attempt.

But history says it will not be enough to win a Super Bowl. Champs have always dominated the air, not the ground. Here's the record of the 10 best rushing teams in NFL history ... none of which won a playoff game.

1. 2011 Eagles (5.78 YPA, 3-4 record)
2. 1963 Browns (5.74, 10-4)
3. 1945 49ers (5.65, 7-4-1)
4. 1997 Lions (5.51, 9-7)
5. 2006 Falcons (5.47, 7-9)
6. 2010 Eagles (5.43, 10-6)
7. 2007 Vikings (5.33, 8-8)
8. 1958 Browns (5.32, 9-3)
9. 2002 Vikings (5.30, 6-10)
10. 1984 Rams (5.29, 10-6)

Ffchamps.com's 'Start and Sit'

Start him
Falcons RB Michael Turner looks to be a good play. The Indianapolis Colts have allowed the most fantasy points (18.6 per week) to opposing running backs this season. Combine that stat with the fact Turner has rushed for more than 100 yards in each of his last two games, and you get a recipe for a bang-up day by the Burner.

Sit him
We no longer refer to Titans RB Chris Johnson as CJ2K; he's now CJ-NO-K, since he isn't coming anywhere close to sniffing 1,000 yards. He's been so bad that he's actually being outperformed by his backup, Javon Ringer.

WEEKEND FOOTBALL BETTING GUIDE

FALCONS 4-3 at COLTS 0-8

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Falcons -7.5 (O/U 44.5)
The Scoop: Only 7.5 points? This is the 0-8 Colts, right? Indy is 2-6 ATS as well. Atlanta big.
Pick: Falcons

BUCS 4-3 at SAINTS 5-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Saints -8.5 (O/U 50)
The Scoop: The Saints are just 2-6 SU and 1-7 ATS in their last eight games against the Bucs in New Orleans.
Pick: Buccaneers

BROWNS 3-4 at TEXANS 5-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Texans -10.5 (O/U 41)
The Scoop: Browns are awful on the road and have just two wins ATS in their last 11 games.
Pick: Texans

JETS 4-3 at BILLS 5-2

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Bills -2 (O/U 44)
The Scoop: Basically a pick 'em type of game. Ignore the spread. We like a Jets team on the rise.
Pick: Jets

DOLPHINS 0-7 at CHIEFS 4-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Chiefs -4 (O/U 40.5)
The Scoop: Way too small a line for a team 1-6 ATS.
Pick: Chiefs

49ERS 6-1 at REDSKINS 3-4

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: 49ers -4 (O/U 38)
The Scoop: Not only are the Niners doing well SU, they are also undefeated (6-0-1) ATS.
Pick: 49ers

SEAHAWKS 2-5 at COWBOYS 3-4

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Cowboys -12 (O/U 44)
The Scoop: Seattle is 1-6-1 ATS in their last eight on the road and 0-5 ATS in their last five against Dallas.
Pick: Cowboys

BRONCOS 2-5 at RAIDERS 4-3

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

Line: Raiders -9 (O/U 42.5)
The Scoop: Denver is just 2-5 ATS this year and you know the Raiders will want to run it up.
Pick: Raiders

BENGALS 5-2 at TITANS 4-3

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

Line: Titans -3 (O/U 42)
The Scoop: The Bengals are 6-1 ATS, including a win last week. They like being overlooked.
Pick: Bengals

PACKERS 7-0 at CHARGERS 4-3

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Packers -5.5 (O/U 50.5)
The Scoop: The Pack is easily the best team in football.
Pick: Packers

Ravens vs. Steelers (8:20 Sunday)

LINE: Steelers -3 (O/U 42)

KEY INJURIES: WR Hines Ward (ankle) questionable. WR Emmanuel Sanders (knee) out. LB James Harrison (eye) questionable. NT Haloti Ngata (thigh) questionable. C Matt Birk (neck) questionable.

THE SCOOP: You know this game will be physical and you know it will be close — at least before this year's opening game blowout by Baltimore. Steelers get the three points for playing at home, so Vegas isn't exactly sure who will win. We like the Steelers to get some revenge against a Ravens team that is clearly struggling. It doesn't hurt that the Ravens are 2-5-1 ATS in their last eight meetings with the Steelers. You only need a touchdown more to win it.

PICK: Steelers

NY GIANTS 5-2 at NEW ENGLAND 5-2

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Patriots -9 (O/U 50.5)
The Scoop: Everyone is jumping big on the Patriots to win this game. Neither team has looked particularly consistent in compiling the same record. So here's a funny stat for you: The Patriots are 4-1 SU against the Giants in their last five meetings. However, they are just 1-4 ATS in those games.
Pick: Giants

BEARS 4-3 at EAGLES 3-4

MONDAY, 8:30 P.M.

Line: Eagles -8 (O/U 47)
The Scoop: Both teams are coming in on two-game winning streaks after a bit (or a lot) of shakiness. These teams have played within five points — one way or the other — in their last four meetings. That gives you the idea this game will be close. Since both teams are 3-4 ATS this year, we'll go with a close game.
Pick: Bears

RAMS 1-6 at CARDINALS 1-6

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Off
The Scoop: Good luck finding action on this one with Kevin Kolb looking doubtful. Basically a college game.
Pick: The better bad team

SYRACUSE 4-3 at UCONN 6-1

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: UConn -2
The Scoop: The Huskies shouldn't be favored. Also, the stands will be empty ... basketball season began.
Pick: Syracuse

MICHIGAN NO. 13, 7-1 at IOWA 5-3

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: Michigan -4
The Scoop: Iowa is just 2-3 ATS in their last five and lost SU to Minnesota last week.
Pick: Michigan

PURDUE 4-4 at WISCONSIN NO. 19, 7-1

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: Wisconsin -26
The Scoop: Yes, the Badgers are coming off two bad losses. But Purdue lost by 28 to Notre Dame.
Pick: Wisconsin

TEXAS A&M 5-3 at OKLAHOMA NO. 7, 7-1

SATURDAY, 3 P.M.

Line: Oklahoma -14
The Scoop: The loss to TTU took off the pressure. The Sooners roll.
Pick: Oklahoma

STANFORD NO. 4, 8-0 at OREGON ST. 2-6

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: Stanford -21.5
The Scoop: A miracle cover last week kept Stanford on a spread-covering streak. They should win easy.
Pick: Stanford

CINCINNATI NO. 23, 6-1 at PITTSBURGH 4-4

SATURDAY, 7 P.M.

Line: Cincinnati -3.5
The Scoop: Cincinnati is a paper tiger. They've beaten no one. Even with no Ray Graham we like Pitt.
Pick: Pittsburgh

S. CAROLINA NO. 10, 7-1 at ARKANSAS NO. 8, 7-1

SATURDAY, 7:15 P.M.

Line: Arkansas -5.5
The Scoop: Arkansas is just 2-4 ATS in their last six games despite their impressive record overall.
Pick: South Carolina

NOTRE DAME 5-3 at WAKE 5-3

SATURDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: Notre Dame -14
The Scoop: Wake Forest has lost three straight ATS. Besides, the Irish are just a better team.
Pick: Notre Dame

LSU NO. 1, 8-0 at ALABAMA NO. 2, 8-0

SATURDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: Alabama -4.5
The Scoop: The real national title. Bama wins it comfortably.
Pick: Alabama

Union fall in MLS playoffs

◗ Dynamo beat hometown club 1-0 in finale ◗ Take aggregate series, 3-1 ◗ Philadelphia's season over

When push came to shove, the home team just wanted it more.

Such was the case Thursday night at Houston's Robertson Stadium, as the Dynamo scored a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Union to win their two-game, aggregate Eastern Conference semifinal MLS Cup playoff series.

The Dynamo advance to face Sporting Kansas City in the Eastern Conference finals.

In a mostly sluggish first half, the Dynamo connected in the 48th minute when Brad Davis sent a sidewinding kick toward the middle of the field. The ball was re-directed off the head of Brian Ching and past Union keeper Faryd Mondragon in the back right corner of the net.

Needing two goals just to force overtime, the Union had no answers. The Dynamo clogged all passing lanes, controlled possession and essentially killed the clock for the final 45 minutes. Philadelphia finished with just four total shots on goal in the series finale.

The Union had been facing tough odds from the outset. The hometown club entered the postseason party as the youngest team in the MLS Cup playoffs. Meanwhile, Houston won back-to-back championships in 2006 and 2007, while posting a 5-1 all-time record in home playoff games. Make that 6-1 after Thursday's victory.

Avant: 'Everyone is welcome back' on Eagles bandwagon

Birds receiver won't apologize for controversial comments Says he's entitled to opinion Respects fans, city and wants to win Super Bowl

Freedom of speech is protected by the First Amendment.

Of course, freedom of the press is also covered in that inalienable right.

So, with those two things in mind, Eagles wide receiver Jason Avant attempted to clarify controversial comments he made about Eagles fans following Sunday's win.

Avant, one of the most affable guys on the entire roster, was quoted as saying the following:

"We don't want people jumping on our bandwagon now. We want people to go out and still talk bad about us."

Avant addressed reporters yesterday for the first time since dropping that bombshell. The veteran wouldn't apologize and said he thought his comments were blown out of proportion by the media.

"The fans I guess called in stations and gave their opinions, right? I'm a person, this is America, right? I can have an opinion, right? That's my opinion," Avant said. "I take offense when you have signs outside talking about firing my coach. I take offense to it. Definitely not apologizing for that."

Avant added that everyone, specifically pointing to the reporters surrounding his locker, knows that he's not malicious in any way. In fact, Avant is one of the most religious players in the Eagles' locker room, as evidenced after every big catch when he raises his hands to the heavens in jubilation.

"I play my hardest for Jesus Christ and this team," he said.

But how about those fair-weather fans that jumped off the bandwagon? Are they allowed back?

"Who am I to allow anybody back?" Avant said. "I am a guy who goes over the middle. I don't have that type of authority. Everybody is welcome back."

Quoted

"All are welcome to root for the Eagles. It's not a thing of being mad. I wanted to let our guys know that we have to play through any adversity."

McCoy sent home with stomach flu

GETTY IMAGES

LeSean McCoy was sent home early yesterday with a stomach flu.

But don't panic or read too much into it. Eagles coach Andy Reid said McCoy wouldn't miss more than one day. Ronnie Brown and rookie Dion Lewis split the first-team reps in McCoy's absence.

"He got pumped with the IVs and hopefully he'll be here [Friday]," Mike Vick said of McCoy.

In an interesting twist, McCoy — along with Vick and Phillies shortstop Jimmy Rollins — were spotted at the Jay-Z/Kanye West concert Wednesday night. However, McCoy's illness doesn't appear related to that show.

"No, I'm absolutely sure [it wasn't related to the concert]. He had a little bit of it before the concert," Reid said yesterday.
